

Right?

In June 2018, we held a Round to mark the anniversary of the Grenfell fire. From amongst an audience of 110 staff, one person voiced his dilemma on that morning: turn right, run to St Mary's and care for people as an NHS professional; or turn left, run to the Tower and care as a neighbour. Others picked up with their own stories of dual loyalties, and the phrase caught on. It now remains vivid in all our minds as an expression of the multiple identities, loyalties and layers of caring that NHS healthcare staff inhabit.
